

Intro to Drama for Young Children

Theatrical training is a proven tool for developing self-confidence, poise, and presentation skills, especially when such training is started at an early age.

This class is a rewarding creative experience for ages 4-6. Children of that age are naturally inclined to storytelling, and "playing pretend", but tend to lack an awareness of how to turn their make-believe into clear, coherent, and entertaining storytelling. Young students will learn to define and focus their creative ideas as they develop stage technique and explore and inhabit characters.

The class concludes with a performance at our Spring Recital!
