

Intro to Acting

Theatrical training is a proven tool for developing self-confidence, poise, and presentation skills, especially when training starts at an early age.

This class is a rewarding creative experience for ages 6–8. Children of that age are naturally inclined to storytelling, and "playing pretend", but often lack an ability to turn their make-believe into clear, coherent, and entertaining storytelling.

In a fun and nurturing setting, young students will learn to define and focus their creative ideas as they develop stage technique and explore and inhabit characters. They will build and practice skills that enhance and improve their logic and narrative flow not only in acting, but in all interpersonal communication.

The class concludes with a performance at our Recital!
